

Exhibit H:

Slide 34 from Rimini's Permanent
Injunction Argument

Oracle's Can't Fill Gaps in the Copyright Claim with the Hacking Claim

Rimini Street

- Oracle deliberately attempts to distract from the flaws with its infringement claim by pointing to the hacking claim.
- But if the hacking caused Oracle to lose profits (it did not), that does not justify an injunction prohibiting infringement, which indisputably did not cause Oracle to lose any profits or any customers.

LOOK OVER THERE!

